The Minimum Rate of Wages Insisted -The Demands of the Workingmen in Detail.

[By telegraph to the Dispatch.] Director, June 1.—At a general meeting the five central labor bodies of the city day organized labor took a radical tand against any further move to give blic assistance to the World's Fair as ag as their demands for a minimum rate are refused. Resolutions upon resolutions were cast at the Fair and the directors and mittee was appointed to continue the fight. The bodies represented at the meeting were the Trade and Labor Assembly, the Central Labor Union, the Central Council of Knights of Labor, and the Carpenters' Council. Legal opinions were read from C. S. Darrow and Jesse Cox on the question as to whether the World's Fair directors had the right to grant a minimum rate of wages. The directors claimed that it would conflict with their by-laws which required them to let the contracts to the lowest bidder. Both these attorneys' opinions were to the effect that the directors had the right to grant the minimum rate; that it did not conflict with the by-law referred to. The inference drawn by the labor people from these opinions was that the directors knew their rights all the time and merely gave this excuse as a subterfuge to escape from the minimum rate.

AN EXHAUSTIVE REPORT.

The World's Fair joint Labor Committee submitted an exhaustive report covering all its conferences with the World's Fair directors, together with all documents bearing on the case. It recited the action of the City Council in its favor, the released of the Builders' and Traders' Exchange to act in conjunction with it, the rejection of the minimum rate of wages by the directors. The report further says that the appropriations under which the Fair will be held makes it a public (not a private) business enterprise. "That as all lawful powers—local, State, national, and international—have been invoked in aid of the Fair, our action in the struggling for the recognition of union hours, wages, and labor should be equally extensive, and the whole lawful force of union labor should be used in securing these demands; that reports of all conferences be printed and sent to all labor bodies in the world; that a committeeman from each trade represented in the bodies present be elected to begin the crusade for the minimum rate of wages; that a mass-meeting be called soon to start the ball rolling; that legislative action be invoked, and that so long as our rights are not recognized by the directors, we cannot conscientiously aid the World's Fair.

A CONSPIBACY.

Resolutions were then adopted that "as it has come to our knowledge that a con-spiracy has been formed between the managers of the World's Fair and the Chispiracy has been formed between the managers of the World's Fair and the Chicago papers to prevent public knowledge of the discontent among the working classes of this city, caused by the action of the managers of the fair, a notice of this conspiracy be sent to the principal papers of New York, Boston, St. Louis, and other great cities in the United States and Europe; that notices be also sent to all labor organizations, and that advertisements to this effect be inserted in such papers as may assert their independence and refuse to be a party to this conspiracy; that we respectfully but firmly protest against any further increase in taxation for World's Fair purposes or anything connected therewith, and that this resolution be properly presented to the City Council; that we protest against any portion of the fire department or police force being furnished the World's Fair corporation at the public expense, and that this resolution be brought to the attention of the mayor. If the World's Fair needs special fire and police service let the corporation furnish the same at its own and not the public expense."

I. W. Mackin, secretary of the ioint labor committee, was instructed to go to-day to Springfield and attempt to have inday to Springheid and attempt to have incorporated in the pending appropriation bill of $1,000,000 in aid of the World's Fair a clause providing that the minimum rate of wages shall be maintained in the expanditure of that money.

MR. HARRISON'S FINAL SERMON.

Nearly Two Hundred Converts-Death of

FARMVILLE, VA., June I.—Rev. Mr. Harrison preached his final sermon before the people of Farmville last night after a most successful work. Nearly 200 professed taith in Christ during the ten days of his successful work. Nearly 200 professed taith in Christ during the ten days of his labors and there were many renewals of yows from those who were backsliding. Mr. Harrison won his way to the hearts of the entire community of people, both white and colored, and it is conceded by all denominations that never before was there such a glorious revival of religion as this has been. The membership-rolls of all the churches were greatly lengthened at their respective services yesterday. Mr. Harrison left this afternoon for his home in Glade Spring, where he will remain only till the close of his school commencement, when he will go to meet an engagement to preach in a series of meetings at Mt. Airy, N. C., and from thence he will go to Hopkinsville, Ky., on the same mission. He has almost completely exhausted his strength of body and voice by continuous and protracted preaching, and craves the Christians' prayers that his strength may be kept adequate to the work of winning souls to the feet of Jesus, which hes before him. Yesterday afternoon he preached in the Onera-House to an overflowing

[Special telegram to the Dispatch.]

DANVILLE, Va., June 1.—Mr. S, Hairston, of this city, has had a number of colored hands employed doing some ditching for him between Royal Oad and Berry Hill, in the neighborhood of Cascade. On Sunday last they took a stroll and came upon the body of a man in a deplorable condition, all of the flesh having been caten away by dogs and buzzards. They could not tell whether it was the body of a white or colored man, or whether there had been foul play. Near the spot was a hat and some bed-clothing, which were believed to have been owned by the dead man.

Bob Miller when in life lived at Cascade, this county, was a colored man and a section hand on the Danville and Western railway. He has a sister named Patsy Dillard. Yesterday Bob was resting from his labors and fell asleep, not dreaming of any harm befalling him. His sister went into his room, picked up a pistol which was lving around loose, and blazed away at the sleeping form of her brother. Bob never kicked a bit, but woke up suddenly in another world. No cause can be assigned for the deed, and the only thing that the woman will say is: "I thought the pistol was a popegue."

THE PRINCE OF WALES. THE PRINCE OF WALES.

The entrance of the Prince of Wales was the signal for the court proceedings to commence. No sooner was the Prince seated than the jury was sworn, and Lord-Chief-Justice Coleridge, taking his seat on the bench and addressing Solucitor-General Clarke, leading counsel for the plaintiff said in substance that he desired that the Prince of Wales should be kept in court as short a time as possible, and he, Lord Coleridge, hoped that his learned brother would agree to arrange matters so that the Prince should not be detained any longer than absolutely necessary.

The Lord Chief Justice thanked his learned brother for his courtesy in this matter, and wished it to be remembered that the Prince of Wales did not attend the court as a spectator, but that he did so in obedience to the law.

THE CASE OPENED. THE CASE OF NED.

Sir Edward Clarke opened the case for the piaintiff. In so doing he read the much-talked-of document which Sir William Gordon Cumming signed after the discovery of his alleged cheating at cards, and in which he undertook, as the price of his fellow-players' silence on the subject, pover again to pluy cards.

and in which he undertook, as the price of his fellow-players' silence on the subject, never again to play cards.

Mr. Clarke said that Mr. Cumming had made a great mistake in signing this document, but he explained that the plaintiff had allowed himself to be persuaded by his old friends, General Owen Williams and Lord Coventry, hoping that in so doing he would avoid scandal which his friends seemed to dread. When he had concluded Cumming took the witness-box. He entered the box in a cool, jaunty manner and gave his version of the Tanby-Croft affair. He answered questions in a clear and well-pitched voice, which could be heard all over the court-room and kept.

A filage preacher said that he once married a rural couple at the home of the bride's parents in the presence of a large company of invited guests. The bride's parents in the presence of a large groom was a big, bony, red-faced young fellow, who looked as though he could be shivered and turned pale at the beginning of the ceremony, and at its close fell down in a dead faint, to the manifest annoyance of his bride, who had been as cool as a cucumber.

THE LUCERNE PETITION.

(By telegraph to the Dispatch.)

Sr. Louis, Mo., June 1.—It is authoritatively stated here that the so-called Lucerne petition of Pope Leo XIII. asking that institutions be established in different parts of Europe for the education of priests, who shall accompany emigrants of their nationality and care for them after their arrival in America, was concocted in this city. Rev. Father Phelan, editor of the Western Watchman, a leading Catholic paper of the West, says that the same kind of effort has been indulged in for ten years past. American Catholics generally here think that only a small part of the German Catholics favor the scheme and that it will have no force of effect.

Loxnon, June 1.—The famous baccarat scandal trial—otherwise the action of Str. William Gordon Cumming against Mr. and Mrs. Lycett Green, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wilson, and Mr. Berkeley Levett for slander—commenced before Lord Chief-Justice Coleridge to-day in the Queen's-Bench division of her Majesty's High Court of Justice.

Long before the hour (11 A. M.) fixed for the hearing the court-room was filled with crowds of fashionable people who had been lucky enough to obtain one of the much-coveted tickets granting them the right to be present at the long-expected baccarat revelations. Lord Coleridge in disposing of the seats in the court-room had to resist much pressure from swarms of aristocratic notabilities, male and female, who seemed to be under the impression that they had a right to be present at the long-expected baccarat revelations.
